

NBCI urges all communities to always be prepared. The town government has a moral responsibility to make sure that each resident in an emergency situation has access to a week's supply of life saving water. The goal should be that each resident of the town has a week's worth of the living water.

Your town, organization or municipality should come together and purchase a sufficient supply of nutritional water so they can safeguard their citizens. Why?

1. Water mains in many cities and towns are roughly 100 years old. Your municipality has no idea when the next water main break will occur.
2. Your agency has a responsibility to the citizens it serves.

Cedisus provides healthy hydration pH water with nutrients. The water is great for congregation members, camps, retreats, conventions and staff, name a few. This includes athletes, elderly, the under-served, individuals working out in the elements and those that are mobility limited.

The water has many benefits including keeping individuals hydrated, lubricates muscles and joints, increases energy, and cleanses the system (viruses), to name a few. Delivery options are bottled water and dispensing machines. Our use of "green" technology is good for the environment.
