

National Black Church Initiative Honors and Salutes the Life of our Beloved Brother in Christ The Rev. Jesse Jackson

WASHINGTON, DC, UNITED STATES, February 17, 2026 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The National Black Church Initiative (NBCI), a coalition of 150,000 African American and Latino faith communities comprising 27.7 million members, express its sadness and love for the life and work of the Rev. Jesse Jackson. Jesse Jackson was one of the Black Church's great leaders. He preached the Gospel and took it to the streets. Rev. Jackson was what Martin Luther King, Jr. called a drum major for justice and peace. Jesse was also an example of how this country's racism robs it of the great leaders of our time. Jesse should have been the first African American President of the United States, not President Obama. Jesse is the single reason why President Obama was elected. Obama failed to deliver. This would not have been true for Rev. Jackson. He would not have wasted eight years. Jesse would have moved this country forward. The Rev. Anthony Evans, president of the National Black Church Initiative, said that Rev. Jackson's life is a part of a continuum of great Baptist preachers who used their gifts to move humanity forward. He kept the faith and the light of Christ and NBCI will continue that work every day."

NBCI President Anthony Evans and the Rev. Jesse Jackson

Recently, NBCI honored the Rev. Jesse Jackson for years of distinguished service to the gospel ministry as it unveiled the 25 Most Effective Christian Preachers in the Country. Rev. Jackson was a student of timing. He knew when to move. His language was direct and shaped to move the argument. He. We are better off that Jesse has come this way. The Black church will miss him. He was handsome for Christ to help turn the Gospel into the living word of GOD.

We are better off that Jesse has come this way, Praise be to God in Christ for his life and work. The National Black Church Initiative is carrying on that work
